The Magician (Maugham novel) - Wikipedia

THE MAGICIAN (1908) by W. Somerset Maugham is an unusual work of early 20th century fantastic literature inspired by the real historical personage and occultist Aleister Crowley who was a contemporary and acquaintance of the author. Reminiscent of FRANKENSTEIN, the magician, Oliver Haddo, is an imposing, terrifying and yet strangely compelling man of mystery who engages in dangerous clandestine experimentation and dark practices, embroiling the other characters in a wicked game of life and ...

W. Somerset Maugham's 1908 novel "The Magician" is, as Robert Calder's introductory essay frankly admits, derivative of the then-current public fascination with the occult. Maugham was between best-sellers and writing for income; the result is formulaic, but still an example of the author's ability to tell a good story.

Maugham wrote The Magician in London, after he had spent some time living in Paris, where he met Aleister Crowley. The novel was later republished with a foreword by Maugham entitled A Fragment of Autobiography. The novel inspired a film of the same name directed in 1926 by Rex Ingram. Arthur Burdon and Dr Porhoët walked in silence.
